Description

Have you considered offering childcare for the babies in your home while your moms are at work and/or school? Do you struggle with your mom's heading back to work after the baby is born because they do not trust outside daycares? Choosing quality and affordable child care as a single mom can be a very difficult decision. Finding the right daycare for your child as a parent in general is already tough enough, but for single parent households with young children it's crucial. Learn how operating a childcare center right inside your home/organization can increase your outcomes, keep you connected to alumni moms, and offer real help to the mom's that we work with.
